

TWO GIRLS CUT OFF BY WAR IN FRANCE, REACH HOME SAFELY

Isolated in Breton Village, They Are Held Eighteen Days, Then Make Their Way to Paris.

To be stranded in a seaport town eight hours from Paris, and cut off from communication with the outside world for eighteen days during the mobilization of the French army, was the experience of the Philadelphia girls, Miss Hortense and Miss Leona...

"We were no worse off than the rest of the women of Europe and a great deal more fortunate than the majority," said Miss Levy yesterday in speaking of her experiences. "Everywhere the men have deserted the villages and the women are taking over their labors."

"On August 1 I was attracted to the widow of my room by the pitiful crying at a funeral which was being held in a picturesque cemetery across the street. It was while in the midst of this dismal scene that the tones of the tocan bell broke in, telling that war had been declared. The proclamation calling for mobilization, which was pasted before the mayor's office, was several yards long. It was received at 5 o'clock Sunday evening and the next morning no men were present, all were in the fields hastily harvesting their crops or were on their way to the front."

"The French were very courteous to us. Prices were not raised. In fact, the prices on butter and eggs came down. Butter could be bought for 15 cents a pound, because the usual sources of its outlet were cut off. Notices were posted notifying the public that it was a penal offense to raise prices."

"While we were stranded we knew but little of what was going on on the outside. The men had all left, and all the activity of the town was carried on by the women. We spent considerable of our time sewing for the Red Cross. On August 13 we were able to reach Paris after many passports and papers had been signed. The trip took 25 hours, while it usually takes but eight. On the trip to Paris we stopped at La Mons, where the first trainloads of wounded were being brought in."

"At Amiens we saw the arrival of the 70,000 English troops. They displayed the greatest good humor and were singing a popular song, 'Tipperary,' which the natives believed to be their national air. The postage stamps of France, which formerly cost two cents, are now selling for three, the extra cent being used for the Red Cross relief work."

"Everywhere we found the widest excitement. The soldiers are going on their way, leaving the women behind and their windows and even the wounded do not lose their good humor."

Miss Levy and Miss Abrahams arrived on the steamship Elmsland at New York yesterday. They say that the congestion of tourists at London has been relieved and praise the work of the American committee. They had to work their way from the coast of Brittany to Paris, but in the French capital they met friends, who assisted them to reach London."

Trains from New York yesterday brought home two Philadelphia families who had come over on the steamship Comandante, landing at New York. Mr. and Mrs. Hartman and their family arrived yesterday evening and are registered for a few days at the Bellevue-Stratford. The family couple were Mr. and Mrs. Morris Daumstamm, of 194 Spring Garden street.

WAR NEWS IN LETTER. An interesting account of the war conditions in Antwerp and the attack of the German Zeppelins on the city is contained in a letter received by Max Hess, of 305 Arch street, from his brother Philippe, who has been attending school in that city.

"Schools, theatres and cafes have been closed," the letter says, "and have been turned into hospitals. Automobiles and motorcycles bear the insignia of the army. Soldiers patrol the streets and all business is suspended. All the soldiers starting for the front are loaded with flowers, cigars, candy and luxuries. The English airmen receive ovations whenever they appear on the streets."

"The attack of the Zeppelins occurred at 1 o'clock at night, according to the letter. 'We all had retired,' he writes, 'and the people had had no rumors of an enemy for some time, when suddenly the city was shaken as if by an earthquake. A series of explosions followed at short intervals and people rushed into the streets, not knowing where the next bomb would fall.'

"The King, who had moved with his family to Antwerp, is said to have rushed into the street countless and hatless. Ten bombs were dropped and eight people were killed and 25 wounded. The whirr of the propellers of the destroyers could be heard all the time that the bombs were being dropped, and the only evidence that the bombs were falling was the low droning hum of the propeller blades, which preceded the dropping of a bomb, after which the pilot sent the machine beyond the range of any possible attack."

"All business must be suspended at a night and all lights must be covered at the first warning of an attack. Dark coverings are put over the windows and soldiers patrol the streets in groups to ward off any attack."

HONOR CONGRESSMAN LOQUE Catholic Total Abstinence Union Thanks Representatives for Aid.

In recognition of Congressman Loque's efforts on behalf of the temperance societies, the Catholic Total Abstinence Union presented him with a copy of resolutions at the opening of the fall campaign of the Union in the Cathedral Hall, Sixteenth and Vine streets, yesterday afternoon.

The resolutions thanked him for his untiring work during the last twenty years, and were presented by James Dougherty, chairman of the committee appointed at the Convention of the Union in Niagara Falls last year.

Congressman Loque briefly replied in a speech extolling the Union for the progress made in the last forty years and complimented it on its vigorous activity.

WIDESPREAD UNREST THROUGHOUT ITALY Frequency of Disorders at Home Causes Alarm—Consequences of War Heavy on Budget.

A strong light is thrown upon the present condition of affairs in Italy, and upon the decision of the Italian Government to maintain neutrality, in a letter to the New York Evening Post from its Naples correspondent, of which the following is part:

Cerignola is a little city in Apulia, in the south of Italy, between the Apennines and the Adriatic. Yesterday, as certain orators of the Liberal party were speaking in the public square, a bomb burst under the platform of the orators. The news of the event is not as yet precise, but it appears that a present speaker was killed, it is hardly known how. We read already in Cerignola is a 'nest of anarchists'; the intervention of the Government is already invoked for making arrests in mass, or, if necessary, setting up some new kind of gallows in the public square."

In large proportions the same thing occurred in the tumults of Romagna and during the general strike and the threatened railway strike a month ago.

I was not in Italy when there took place, on the 17th of last June, the disorders of Ancona, which have been discussed largely by the national and international press. After a private political meeting, about 200 persons, Socialists and Republicans together, in small groups, directed themselves toward one of the city squares, the Piazza Roma. A cord of police had been already placed to bar the way to the crowd. A conflict ensued between the crowd and the police. The policemen say they were hit by stones and by a few shots fired, which last they have not been able to trace. The demonstrators deny it. It is easy to believe that the carabinieri were maltreated by the crowd, just as it is also believable that nothing terrible would have happened if 50 or more persons had been allowed to walk about freely in Piazza Roma, in Ancona, and to shout a few hurrahs and the reverse."

I came back to Italy from a long journey in Greece, and first to Rome, where the general strike had already begun, and the most varied and sensational events were in progress. The Conservative and Liberal papers were full of catastrophic accounts, they spoke of anti-monarchical plots and of organized revolution. Thus a great panic spread through all Italy.

Italy can be ruled only by either a tyrannical Government, like that of the Popes or of the medieval nobles, or by a strong and laborious democracy, conscious of its rights and duties and that represent it to stronger peoples not less necessary than the perfect organization of the administration and of the Government.

Certainly, this crisis of growth and this initial distrust in a form of government insufficiently active and operative according to what most people believe to be the material and spiritual necessities of Italian life, have had their share in the recent disorders.

They here continued to consider and to treat the peasant as they did 50 years ago; they have dominated the local administrations, and have had the Government at their service; law and justice have been almost entirely on their side. Thus, between proprietors and laborers there has risen a barrier over which sometimes stretched the hand of a madman, armed by a criminal, to fire the fuse of a bomb.

The consequences of the war weigh and must continue to weigh heavily on our budget. Italy, having shown herself strong and great in the presence of the whole world, has created new difficulties for herself abroad, and this is another reason for not illuding ourselves about her internal conditions and for not falsifying their origin and cause.

The Italian Government has chosen the direct road of neutrality in the explosion of this homicidal madness of conquest. It is not enough to say that the road chosen is the most loyal, by reason of the honest interpretation of the treaty which binds Italy to Germany and Austria. It must be recognized that this is a duty toward the nation at this moment.

CONTRACTOR SUES CITY Seeks to Recover Money Deducted for Pavement Repairs.

David Peoples, a contractor, sued the city in the Municipal Court today to recover $400, which he claims was improperly deducted from his bill. In September, 1912, the city awarded a contract to Peoples for the reconstruction of main sewers. Part of the work is completed of the building of a sewer in Chestnut street, from 43d to 49d street.

While the work was progressing on the south side of the street, the United Improvement Company, Peoples says, tore up the sidewalk on that side to get at its gas mains. The city repaved the sidewalk and charged the cost, $100, to Peoples. When the contractor was paid for his work this amount was deducted. The contractor declares that he had nothing to do with the tearing up of the sidewalk.

FIRE DESTROYS POWERHOUSE AT BRANDYWINE SPRINGS Skating Rink at Park Also Falls Victim to Flames.

WILMINGTON, Del., Sept. 13.—Fire early this morning destroyed the skating rink owned by W. W. McCool, at Brandywine Springs Park, and the auxiliary powerhouse of the People's Railway Company. A number of houses in the suburb known as the Cedars, were threatened. A call was sent to Wilmington, and several Wilmington fire companies responded, but the rink and powerhouse were gone when they arrived.

The skating rink has been out of service for some time and the powerhouse was kept as an emergency plant. The current for the amusement park in the summer season is furnished by an electric company in Wilmington, but the other plant which was formerly used was kept to be put into service in case of an emergency. The loss on the skating rink is estimated at $400. The loss on the powerhouse will run close to $50,000.

GEORGE TO HEAD REPUBLIC Will Probably Be Made Manager of Freewill Institution.

ITHACA, N. Y., Sept. 14.—The executive committee of the Board of Trustees of the George Junior Republic has voted to attempt to keep that institution open. It has been decided to recommend to the board of trustees that William H. George be placed in charge as manager, and the committee expresses the belief that the new management can meet the existing debt of $6000.

Mr. George told the executive committee that it would be impossible to keep the republic open under the financial conditions that had prevailed in Freewill during a few years past, but that the republic could be run successfully, Mr. George also hinted that if the State Board of Charities sought to take over the republic he would organize a rival institution on grounds adjoining the republic belonging to him.

MAN COMMITS SUICIDE: WOMAN FAILS IN ATTEMPT

Two Victims of Poison, Taken Several Days Ago, Die in Hospitals. One man committed suicide yesterday and two women who swallowed poison tablets several days previous died in hospitals. A woman made an unsuccessful attempt at suicide.

Dependent because he was unable to obtain work at his trade as a carpenter, owing to failing eyesight, Charles Trout, 47 years old, 1548 North Opal street, committed suicide at his home yesterday by inhaling illuminating gas. Several months ago, according to the man's wife, he lost his work because of poor eyesight. Since then he had become partially blind and feared that he would lose his sight entirely. He brooded over the matter and yesterday was found with a gas tube fastened in his mouth.

Catherine Ore, 35 years old, 1324 South Thirteenth street, died in St. Agnes' Hospital from the effects of a number of poison tablets she had swallowed on August 25, mistaking them for headache pills.

Mrs. Madge Tolbert, 30 years old, 1733 Ellsworth street, died at the Polyclinic Hospital as the result of taking poison with suicidal intent. She swallowed the lotion on September 8, and had been in the hospital since then.

Leta Hicks, 35 years old, 431 Galloway street, jumped from the roof of her home in an unsuccessful attempt to end her life. According to the police, woman was well and to consider the selection of a successor. John Wanamaker was largely instrumental in bringing Dr. Jarvis to Bethany, and because of the strong attachment between the pastor and his flock, he said he could not cast his vote to consider the resignation.
